Toyohashi Animation & Comics Society (TACS)

Akitoshi Kubo, manager of the Toyohashi Animation & Comics Society (TACS)

The Toyohashi Animation & Comics Society (TACS) has been active for over twenty years. There society currently has 56 members who are passionately interested in animation and comics and meet during lunchtime or after classes from Monday to Friday. The activities of the society include drawing and evaluating pictures as well as working in large groups to create animated films and games.

The club has a great atmosphere where you can find whatever suits your interest, and you are sure to find friends with similar interests.

The Cel Creation Workshop is a regular event held during the annual university festival in autumn. Anyone, young or old, can participate in this event. Cels (celluliod) is an old technique used for creating animation, and involves painting on a plastic sheet. With the rise of digital animation, this technique is almost unused now, but the society continues to run this workshop each year so that people can experience the fun of animation.

If you want to increase your knowledge of comics and animation, TACS is the place to come!

Please look at the blog describing the society's activities!
